Graduate in historical and sustainable architecture with a focus on spatial analysis, conservation policy, and historical research. Pursuing a career in urbanism and historical conservation in alignment with my background and passion for architectural history, sociology, as well as the physical and cultural networks that make up cities. My deep experience in digital marketing and education technology have made me an expert communicator, cross-functional collaborator, and stakeholder manager. My work is consistently data driven and I have a wealth of experience in content production including academic writing, historical research, heritage analysis, and client-facing presentations. Building a career that allows me to be involved in my community and contribute to a culturally rich and sustainable future.
